at what the Hughes people might con-dider a more opportune time he would favor the resolution and advise his friends to do likewise. Mr. Hotchkiss declared that he would not be a party to any attempt to hold another meeting of the State Committee this year, and the resolution was carried.

At the afternoon meeting the trouble started immediately after a committee appointed to settle protests raised over the proxies presented had reported. Judge William L. Ransom of New York offered a resolution indexing Mr. Hugher fered a resolution indorsing Mr. Hughes other party, but each Progressive should be guided solely by his own conscience and judgment on election day."

Judge Ransom protested that the subresolution could not be entertained by the chair inasmuch as it did not relate specifically to Mr. Hughes but to Presidential electors. State Chairman Johnson held with Judge Ransom. Mr. O'Connell at once called for a vote to override this decision. Mr. Johnson said that he had no right to call for such a vote and a storm of disapproval came from the men opposed to the Hughes andorsement.

After the meeting William H. Hotchess made the following statement:

"By a poll taken unofficially by me at the close of the stormy committee session to-day Hughes led by eighty-six votes, while fifty anti-Hughes opinions were registered. On the question of the stormy committee session to-day Hughes led by eighty-six votes, while fifty anti-Hughes opinions
